Texas Public Information Act Made Easy

This “made easy” article provides answers in easy to understand language to the most frequently asked questions regarding the Public Information Act. In a question-and-answer format, this article provides guidance to public officials and member of public on the most frequently asked questions on the Public Information Act (Act). For example, the article addresses: the types of records and entities that fall under the Act; the time deadlines and mandatory notices that apply when a governmental body handles a PIA request; and when a governmental body is required to ask for an attorney general open records letter ruling.

The stakes are high for public officials who handle PIA requests. There are strict time lines for making determinations on what records to release, and public officials must make such decisions knowing that there are potential criminal penalties if the governmental body releases information that is considered confidential under state law. Similarly, public officers face criminal penalties if they refuse to release information that is considered open to the public.

TML is available to answer questions about this from city officials, who should nonetheless consult with their local legal counsel regarding the application of the law to the facts of each particular situation.

I. Application of the Public Information Act

1. What types of information are subject to the Public Information Act?

Public information includes:

Any information that is written, produced, collected, assembled, or maintained under a law or ordinance or in connection with the transaction of official business:

- 1) By a governmental body;
- 2) For a governmental body and the governmental body:
  - a. Owns the information;
  - b. Has a right of access to the information; or
  - c. Spends or contributes public money for the purpose of writing, producing, collecting, assembling, or maintaining the information; or
- 3) By an individual officer or employee of a governmental body in the officer's or employee's official capacity and the information pertains to official business of the governmental body.<sup>1</sup>

Also, information is in connection with the transaction of official business if the information is created by, transmitted to, received by, or maintained by an officer or employee of the governmental body in the officer's or employee's official capacity, or a person or entity performing official business or a governmental function on behalf of a governmental body, and pertains to official business of the governmental body.<sup>2</sup> Any electronic communication created, transmitted, received, or maintained on any device if the communication is in connection with the transaction of official business is also included in the definition of public information.<sup>3</sup> The Public Information Act (hereinafter the Act) applies to records regardless of their format. It includes information that is maintained in paper, tape, microfilm, video, electronic data held in a computer memory, as well as other mediums specified under law.<sup>4</sup>

2. What types of entities are subject to the Public Information Act?

The Act applies to information that is held by or for any "governmental body."<sup>5</sup> The term "governmental body" has a broad definition that includes in applicable part:

- 1) Boards, commissions, departments, committees, institutions, agencies, or offices that are within or are created by the executive or legislative branch of state government and that are directed by one or more elected or appointed members;
- 2) City governmental bodies;
- 3) County governmental bodies;
- 4) School district board of trustees;
- 5) Local workforce development board;
- 6) Governing board of a special district
- 7) Nonprofit corporations that are eligible to receive funds under the federal community services block grant program and that are authorized by this state to serve a geographic area of the state;
- 8) Confinement facility operated under a contract with any division of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice;
- 9) Civil commitment housing facility owned, leased, or operated by a vendor under contract with the Texas Civil Commitment Office;
- 10) Entity that receives public funds in the current to preceding state fiscal year to manage the daily operations or restoration of the Alamo, or an entity that oversees such an entity;
- 11) The part, section or portion of a public or private entity that spends or that is supported in whole or in part by public funds;
- 12) Certain property owners' associations.<sup>6</sup>

In other words, all governmental entities and certain non-governmental entities are subject to the Act. Additionally, entities that are considered departments, agencies, or political subdivisions of a city or county are also subject to the Act if the involved entity has rule-making or quasi-judicial powers.<sup>7</sup> For example, zoning boards of adjustment have rule-making or quasi-judicial powers and are considered agencies or departments of a city. Therefore, the records of such entities would be subject to the Act.

3. Are there certain entities that are excluded from the definition of “governmental body” under the Act?

There are two entities that are excluded from the definition of governmental body under the Act. The first entity is the judiciary.<sup>8</sup> (See Question 6 for more detail.) The second is an economic development entity whose mission or purpose is to develop and promote the economic growth of a state agency or political subdivision with which the entity contracts if:

- the entity does not receive $1 million or more in public funds from a single state agency or political subdivision in the current or preceding state fiscal year; OR
- the entity does not have the authority to make decisions or recommendations on behalf of a state agency or political subdivision regarding tax abatements or tax incentives; OR
- the entity:
  - does not require an officer of the state agency or political subdivision to hold office as a member of the board of directors of the entity;
  - does not use staff or office space of the state agency or political subdivision for no or nominal consideration, unless the space is available to the public;
  - track the entity's receipt and expenditure of public funds separately from the entity's receipt and expenditure of private funds to a responsible degree; and
  - provides, at least quarterly, public reports to the state agency or political subdivision regarding work performed on behalf of the state agency or political subdivision.<sup>9</sup>

4. Are the records of nonprofit and for-profit entities that receive public funds subject to the Public Information Act?

An entity that is supported in whole or in part by public funds or that spends public funds is a governmental body under section 552.003(1)(A)(xv) of the Government Code. Public funds are “funds of the state or of a governmental subdivision of the state.”<sup>10</sup> The Texas Supreme Court has defined “‘supported in whole or part by public funds’ to include only those private entities or their sub-parts sustained, at least in part, by public funds, meaning they could not perform the same or similar services without the public funds.”<sup>11</sup> Thus, section 552.003(1)(A)(xv) encompasses only those private entities that are dependent on public funds to operate as a going concern, and only those entities acting as the functional equivalent of the government.

Finally, it should be noted that certain entities are specifically made subject to the Public Information Act under the state law that governs that entity. For example, economic development corporations are specifically made subject to the provisions of the Public Information Act under the Development Corporation Act found in Chapters 501 through 507 of the Local Government Code.<sup>12</sup>

5. Are records that are kept or owned by a consultant for a governmental body subject to the Public Information Act?

The fact that a private entity may own or retain a record does not prevent the record from being subject to release under the Public Information Act. For example, if a consultant maintains or holds records for a governmental body, the documents are still considered public information if the governmental body owns the information or has a right of access to it.<sup>13</sup>

It is important to note that a governmental body usually cannot contract away its right to access documents that are held by a consultant if the information would otherwise be considered public. For example, an open record decision has held that a city manager could not contract away the city's right to inspect a list of applicants for a city job even though the list was developed by a private consultant for the city.<sup>14</sup>

6. Are court records subject to the Public Information Act?

Judicial records are not subject to the Public Information Act.<sup>15</sup> Courts must look to the rules adopted by the Texas Supreme Court to determine the court's duty to provide access to court records.<sup>16</sup> Additionally, courts must consider court rulings, attorney general opinions and certain state statutes that give the public a right to obtain copies of court records. For example, higher courts have held that there is an "open courts" concept that must guide judges in giving public access to court documents. This legal concept provides that the public has a right to inspect and copy judicial records subject to the court's inherent power to control access to such records in order to preserve justice. In other words, the public's right of access to court documents is not an absolute right.<sup>17</sup>

It should be noted that the public's right to access court records is in addition to the right of parties to a lawsuit to obtain information through discovery or through other court procedures. Legislation has clarified that subpoenas and motions for discovery are not considered a request for information under the Public Information Act.<sup>18</sup> Such requests should be handled as required by the applicable civil or criminal procedural statutes. Additionally, state law has been amended to indicate that probable cause affidavits for a search warrant are considered public records once the warrant has been executed.<sup>19</sup> The magistrate who issued the warrant must make the affidavits available for public inspection in the court clerk's office.

7. Do the elected officials of a governmental body have a special right of access to a governmental body's records?

These elected officials have an inherent right of access to a governmental body's records if the official is requesting the records in his/her official capacity. The transfer of information to officials of the governmental body is not considered a release to the public as long as the official is asking for the information in his/her official capacity.<sup>20</sup> However, the ability to release such information to elected officials may be limited by the state or federal law that pertains to such documents.

II. What Constitutes a Public Information Request

8. How may a person make a written request for public information?

A person can make a written request for public information under the Act only by delivering the request by one of the following methods to the public information officer:

- United States mail;
- e-mail;
- hand delivery; or
- any other appropriate method approved by the governmental body, including fax and electronic submission through the governmental body's website.<sup>21</sup>

9. May the governmental body designate a mailing address or an e-mail address that a request for public information must be sent to in order for the request to be considered received by the governmental body?

The governmental body may designate one mailing address and one e-mail address for receiving requests for public information.<sup>22</sup> The governmental body shall post the designated mailing address and e-mail address on the governmental body's website and on its required PIA informational sign, and provide to any person on request.<sup>23</sup>

Once the governmental body has posted the designated mailing address and e-mail address on their website and PIA sign, the governmental body is not required to respond to a request for public information unless the request is received at the designated mailing address, designated email address, and/or hand delivered. In addition, the governmental body may create additional methods to submit, but those methods may not eliminate any of the methods in the previous sentence.<sup>24</sup> (See next question.)

10. How does a governmental body approve other appropriate methods for receiving a request for public information?

A governmental body is considered to have approved other appropriate methods for receiving a request for public information only if the governmental body includes a statement that a request for public information may be made by these other appropriate methods on the required PIA sign or on the governmental body's website.<sup>25</sup>

11. Is the office of the attorney general required to create a PIA request form?

The office of the attorney general (OAG) is required to create a PIA request form that will provide the requestor the option of excluding from a request information that the governmental body determines is confidential or subject to an exception to disclosure that the governmental body would assert if the information were subject to the request.<sup>26</sup> The PIA request form can be obtained from the OAG's website.

12. Is a governmental body required to allow requestors to use the OAG's PIA request form?

A governmental body is not required to allow requestors to use the OAG's PIA request form. However, if the governmental body does allow a requestor to use the OAG's PIA request form and the governmental body maintains a website, the governmental body is required to post the OAG's PIA request form on the its website.<sup>27</sup>

13. Must a governmental body respond to verbal requests for copies of records?

A governmental body has the discretion to respond to a verbal PIA request for copies of records. However, the Act is only triggered when the requestor puts in a written PIA request as provided by the Act.<sup>28</sup> If a governmental body provides copies of records upon a verbal request, the governmental body must be consistent in its treatment of all requestors.<sup>29</sup> In other words, if the governmental body does not require a written request from certain individuals, it should not insist on a written request from others.

III. Administration of Public Information Requests

A. Timing Issues under the Public Information Act

14. How much time does a governmental body generally have to comply with a public information request when the governmental body is going to release the requested information?

There is often a misconception that the Public Information Act requires that copies of public information must be produced within ten business days of the written request to the governmental body for the record. However, the standard under the Act is actually that the governmental body must “promptly produce” the public information.<sup>30</sup> Further, the Act states that all PIA requests must be accomplished within a reasonable time period.<sup>31</sup> What is considered reasonable and prompt will vary depending on the number of documents sought by the requestor. In certain circumstances, the records can be produced in less than ten business days. However, requests for a substantial number of documents may take several weeks to produce.

If it will take a governmental body longer than ten business days to provide the records, the governmental body must certify that fact in writing to the requestor.<sup>32</sup> In the notice to the requestor, the governmental body must indicate a set date and hour within a reasonable time that the information will be available for inspection or duplication.

15. Can the governmental body withdraw a public information request after informing the requestor that the requested information is available for inspection, to be picked up, or fails to pay the postage and other fees?

If the requestor fails to inspect or duplicate public information in the governmental body's office on or before the 60th day after the date the information is made available, or fails to pay postage and any other Act charges on or before the 60th day after the date the requestor is informed of the charges, then the request is considered withdrawn.<sup>33</sup>

16. When is a governmental body under a timing deadline to take a particular action when handling a public information request?

The amount of time that governmental bodies have to produce copies of governmental records will vary depending on the amount of information that is requested. However, there are six situations that present a timing deadline for governmental bodies to take a particular action when handling a public information request.

- 1) Notice to Requestor that the Governmental Body Needs Additional Time to Produce Records.<sup>34</sup> If the governmental body is unable to produce a requested record within ten business days for inspection or for duplication, the governmental body must certify that fact in writing to the requestor and set a date and hour within a reasonable time that the information will be available for inspection or for duplication.

- 2) Notice to Requestor that the Governmental Body Needs Additional Time to Produce Records That Are in Active Use or in Storage.<sup>35</sup> If the governmental body needs additional time to produce a record because it is in active use or because it is in storage, the governmental body must notify the requestor of this fact in writing. This notice must be given within ten business days of the governmental body's receipt of the request for the documents.<sup>36</sup> The notice must set a date and hour within a reasonable time that the information will be available for inspection or duplication. It should be noted that the fact that a document has not been formally approved by the governmental body usually would not justify a delay of the document's release under the "active use" provision.<sup>37</sup>

3) Notice to Requestor of Programming or Manipulation Costs.<sup>38</sup> If production of the requested information in a particular format would require additional computer programming or manipulation of data, the governmental body must provide a written notice of this fact to the requestor. The notice must indicate:

- a. that the information is not available in the requested form;
- b. a description of the forms in which the information is available;
- c. a description of any contract or services that would be required to provide the information in the requested form;
- d. as estimated cost providing the information in the requested form; and
- e. the time that it would take to provide the information in that form.<sup>39</sup>

Generally, this notice must be provided to the requestor within 20 days of the governmental body's receipt of the request.<sup>40</sup>

4) Request by the Governmental Body for an Open Records Letter Ruling from the Attorney General.<sup>41</sup> If a governmental body plans to withhold certain documents or information, it usually must request an attorney general's ruling on the ability to withhold such information. The written request for an attorney general's ruling must be made within ten business days after the date the governmental body receives the written request for information. Also, certain notices must be sent:

- a. Notice to Requestor that the Governmental Body Sought an Attorney General's Open Records Letter Ruling.<sup>42</sup> The governmental body must give written notice to a requestor if the governmental body seeks an Attorney General's ruling on the request. A copy of the governmental body's communication to the Attorney General must be provided to the requestor, though it may be redacted if the copy itself discloses the requested information. Both must be given within ten business days of the governmental body's receipt of the request for the documents.

- b. Notice to Person or Entity with Proprietary Interest in Information of Attorney General's Open Records Letter Ruling Request.<sup>43</sup> If a PIA request may result in the release of proprietary information, the governmental body must make a good faith attempt to notify the person or entity that has such an interest in the open records letter ruling request. The written notice must be sent by the governmental body within ten business days of the date the governmental body received the original request for the information. This notice must include:
- i. a copy of the written request for the information; and
  - ii. a statement, in a form prescribed by the attorney general, that the person is entitled to submit a letter, brief, or memorandum to the attorney general in support of withholding the information.<sup>44</sup>

The notice must inform the person that any briefing must include each reason why the person believes the information should be withheld. The person with a proprietary interest must submit his/her brief within ten business days of the date the person receives the written notice from the governmental body. Also, the person who submits a brief to withhold the information must provide a copy of his/her brief to the requestor.<sup>45</sup>

17. What can a governmental body do if it is unclear about what information is being requested or that the scope of the information is unduly broad?

If a governmental body in good faith has determined that the PIA request is unclear or that the scope of the information being asked for is unduly broad, the governmental body should ask the requestor to clarify or narrow the scope of a request.<sup>46</sup> The ten business days to request an attorney general's open records letter ruling is measured from the date the request is clarified or narrowed as long as the governmental body is acting in good faith.<sup>47</sup> In other words from the day that the requestor clarifies or narrows his/her request to the governmental body, the governmental body has ten business days to ask for a ruling from the attorney general's office.

The written request for clarification to the requestor must contain a statement as to the consequence of failing to timely respond to the request for clarification, discussion or additional information.<sup>48</sup> If the governmental body sends a written request for clarification, discussion or additional information to the requestor and the requestor does not send a written response by the 61st day, the requestor's PIA request is considered withdrawn.<sup>49</sup> For the request to be considered withdrawn, the governmental body must send the request for clarification, discussion or additional information to the requestor by certified mail if the governmental body has a physical or mailing address for the requestor.<sup>50</sup> If the PIA request is received by e-mail, the governmental body can send the written request for clarification, discussion or additional information by e-mail.<sup>51</sup> Also, if the requestor does not send an e-mail written response by the 61st day to the e-mail requesting clarification or narrowing, the request is considered withdrawn.<sup>52</sup>

18. When is a governmental body required to ask for an open records letter ruling from the attorney general?

A governmental body is required to ask the attorney general for an open records letter ruling in almost all cases if the governmental body wants to withhold requested documents or information.<sup>53</sup> The fact that a particular document request may arguably fall within one of the statutory exceptions to disclosure does not in itself eliminate the need to ask for an open records letter ruling. Unless the governmental body can point to a previous determination that addresses the exact information that the governmental body now wants to withhold<sup>54</sup> or to a section of the Act that allows a governmental body to withhold information without asking for a ruling<sup>55</sup>, the governmental body must request a ruling to withhold the information. In addition, if determining whether a particular record may be withheld under a statutory exception requires a review and consideration of the applicable facts, the governmental body should request an attorney general ruling before it withholds the record.

A request for an attorney general's ruling must be made, in most cases, within ten business days of the date the governmental body received the written request.<sup>56</sup> Such a request, in most cases, can only be made by the governmental body.<sup>57</sup> If the governmental body does not make such a request within the deadline, the information is presumed to be open to the public as a matter of law and the information must be released.<sup>58</sup> The presumption of openness and the duty to release the information can only be overcome by a compelling reason that the information should not be released. A compelling reason may in certain cases involve a showing that the information is deemed confidential by some other source of law or that third-party interests are at stake.<sup>59</sup> It should be noted that if the governmental body is going to release all of the requested information, there is no need to ask for a ruling. The governmental body can seek advice on any of these issues from the Attorney General's Open Government Hotline at (877) 673-6839 or (512) 478-6736.

19. Can a governmental body request an attorney general ruling when the governmental body has determined the requested information is not subject to one of the Act's exceptions?

The attorney general has concluded a governmental body may not request an open records letter ruling from the attorney general if the governmental body reasonably believes the requested information is not excepted from required disclosure. Instead, the governmental body must promptly produce the requested public information to the requestor.<sup>60</sup>

20. Can a governmental body withhold information because of a previous determination?

The Act provides that a governmental body must request an attorney general open records letter ruling if the governmental body wishes to withhold requested information unless there has been a previous determination about that particular information.<sup>61</sup> The Act does not define previous determination. However, the attorney general has concluded there are two types of "previous determinations".<sup>62</sup>

The first type of previous determination exists so long as the law, facts, and circumstances on which the ruling was based have not changed and where the requested information is precisely the same information which was addressed in a prior attorney general ruling; the ruling is addressed to the same governmental body; and the ruling concludes that the information is or is not excepted from disclosure.

The second type of previous determination is an attorney general decision which may be relied upon so long as the elements of law, facts, and circumstances are met to support the previous decision's conclusion, the decision concludes that a specific, clearly delineated category of information is or is not excepted from disclosure, and the decision explicitly provides that the governmental body or type of governmental body from which the information is requested, in response to future requests, is not required to seek a decision from the attorney general in order to withhold the information. For example, all governmental bodies may withhold direct deposit authorizations; Form I-9s and attachments; W-2 and W-4 forms; certified agendas and tapes (recordings) of a closed meetings; and fingerprints without the necessity of requesting an attorney general ruling as to whether the applicable exception applies.<sup>63</sup>

21. Can a governmental body withhold information from requested information without asking for an open record letter ruling?

There are certain sections within the Act that allow a governmental body to withhold information without asking for an open records letter ruling from the attorney general's office. These sections include:

- 1) Information related to driver's license, motor vehicle title or registration, or personal identification documents<sup>64</sup>
- 2) Credit cards, debit cards and access device numbers;<sup>65</sup>
- 3) Certain information maintained by a family violence shelter center, victim of trafficking shelter center, and sexual assault program;<sup>66</sup>
- 4) Personal information of certain public employees;<sup>67</sup> and
- 5) Social security numbers of any living individual.<sup>68</sup>

All of these sections, except for social security numbers, require the governmental body to send a specific letter to the requestor that explains that certain information has been redacted without asking for a ruling, but that the requestor has the right to appeal to the attorney general's office for a ruling on the withheld information.<sup>69</sup> The attorney general's office has form letters for those sections that require these letters that can be found on its website. If the requestor chooses to appeal to the attorney general's office, then the governmental body will receive a notice from the attorney general's office and will have to submit the required information for a review of the redacted information.<sup>70</sup>

22. What must a governmental body do if it wants to request an open records letter ruling?

If a governmental body wants to withhold information, it has ten business days from the date it receives the request to ask for an open records letter ruling from the attorney general. By the tenth business day, the governmental body must do the following:

- 1. Write the attorney general requesting an open records letter ruling and state which exceptions apply to the requested information.<sup>71</sup>
The original request for a ruling must indicate the specific exception that the governmental body is relying on to withhold the information. If the governmental body fails to cite the applicable exceptions in this request, the governmental body generally will be barred from raising them in any additional briefing that it may provide.
- 2. Provide the requestor with a written statement that the governmental body wishes to withhold the information and that it has asked the attorney general for a ruling.<sup>72</sup>
- 3. Provide the requestor with a copy of the governmental body's correspondence to the attorney general.<sup>73</sup>
- 4. Make a good faith attempt to notify any affected third parties of the request.<sup>74</sup>

The governmental body has an additional five business days (a total of fifteen business days from the date the governmental body received the original request for the record) to provide the attorney general with additional written documentation that supports withholding the requested information.<sup>75</sup> By the 15th business day, the governmental body must:

1. Submit written comments explaining how the claimed exceptions apply.<sup>76</sup>
2. Submit a copy of the written request for information.<sup>77</sup>
3. Submit a signed statement or evidence sufficient to establish the date the request for information was received.<sup>78</sup> It is important to note that the ten business day deadline for requesting an open records letter ruling is measured from the date the request is clarified or narrowed as long as the governmental body is acting in good faith in requesting a clarification or narrowing of an unclear or unduly broad request.<sup>79</sup> If the governmental body contends that the ten business day deadline started the date the request was clarified or narrowed, the governmental body must explain this fact in its request for an open records ruling. Also, the governmental body must explain if there were holidays, natural disasters, and any other days the governmental body was officially closed. In its explanation, the governmental body should include all dates relevant to the calculation of the ten business day deadline.
4. Submit copies of documents requested or a representative sample of the documents.<sup>80</sup> The documents must be labeled to show which exceptions apply to which parts of the documents.<sup>81</sup> Representative samples are not appropriate when each document sought to be withheld contains substantially different information or when third-party proprietary information is at issue.
5. Provide the requestor with a copy of the written comments submitted to the attorney general.<sup>82</sup> The governmental body must provide a copy of its comments to the requestor not later than the 15th business day after the date the request for information was received. This does not mean that the governmental body has to send the requestor a copy of the information that they are trying to withhold. If the written comments disclose or contain the substance of the information requested, the copy provided to the requestor should be redacted. Governmental bodies are cautioned against redacting more than that which would reveal the requested information to the requestor.

The attorney general may ask the governmental body for additional information.<sup>83</sup> The governmental body must respond to an attorney general's request of additional information within seven calendar days.<sup>84</sup> If the governmental body fails to respond, the information is presumed to be open and must be released unless there is a compelling reason to withhold the information.<sup>85</sup>

23. How does a governmental body calculate business days?

Generally, business days are those days that a governmental body's office is open for business and to the public. If a governmental body office is closed, then those days do not count as business days. Specifically, the following are not considered business days:

- Weekends;
- Holidays observed by the governmental body;
- Skeleton crew days;
- A day on which a governmental body's administrative offices are closed; and
- If a governmental body has closed its physical offices for purposes of a public health or epidemic response or if a governmental body is unable to access its records on a calendar day, then such day is not a business day, even if staff continues to work remotely or staff is present but involved directly in the public health or epidemic response.

24. How long does the attorney general have to respond to a request for an open records letter ruling?

The attorney general has 45 business days from the date the request for ruling was received from the governmental body.<sup>86</sup> However, if the attorney general is unable to issue the decision within the 45 business-day period, the attorney general may extend the time to respond for an additional ten business days. Such an extension may be taken if the attorney general notifies the governmental body and the requestor of the reason for the delay. This notification must take place within the original 45 business-day time period.

25. Can a governmental body take longer than fifteen business days to determine whether the requested information is confidential if the request is for an excessive amount of information?

There is no statutory provision that provides the governmental body with an extension of time to seek an open records letter ruling from the attorney general's office. Even if the request is for an excessive amount of information, the governmental body must still meet the fifteen business day deadline for making an open record letter ruling request to the attorney general. As noted earlier, this request must include the legal arguments that support withholding the information, a marked-up representative sample of the requested information (marked to show which exceptions apply to what portion of the sample documents), a copy of the PIA request, and a signed statement or other evidence of when the governmental body received the request.<sup>87</sup>

26. May a governmental body seek a reconsideration of an open records letter ruling that was issued by the attorney general?

If the attorney general or a court has already ruled that the exact information that is at issue in a particular request is open to the public, the governmental body must release the information and is prohibited from seeking a reconsideration of that issue from the attorney general.<sup>88</sup> If the governmental body wants to challenge the ruling, the governmental body must file suit in Travis County district court within 30 calendar days of receiving the ruling.<sup>89</sup>

B. Public Information Request During a Catastrophe

27. May a city temporarily suspend the requirements of the Act during a disaster?

A governmental body that is currently impacted by a catastrophe that interferes with the ability of the governmental body to comply with the requirements of the Act may suspend the applicability of the requirements of the Act.<sup>90</sup> For purposes of the suspension of the Act, a catastrophe is defined as a condition or occurrence that interferes with the ability of a governmental body to comply with the requirements of the Act, including:

- (1) a fire, flood, earthquake, hurricane, tornado, or wind, rain or snow storm;

See Section III(D) of this paper for information concerning temporary custodians.]

- (2) power failure, transportation failure, or interruption of communication facilities;
- (3) epidemic; or
- (4) riot, civil disturbance, enemy attack, or other actual or threatened act of lawlessness or violence.<sup>91</sup>

A governmental body that elects to suspend the requirements of the Act must provide notice to the office of the attorney general that the governmental body is currently impacted by a catastrophe and has elected to suspend the applicability of the Act during the suspension period and the extension period.<sup>92</sup> Notice must be provided in a form promulgated by the attorney general.<sup>93</sup>

28. What is the city required to do if the city elects to suspend the Act because it has been impacted by a catastrophe?

The city is required to:

- 1) Submit a catastrophe notice to the attorney general's office. The notice has to be on the form created by the attorney general's office. The form (first page) requires the following information:
  - a. Name of the governmental body;
  - b. Identification and description of the catastrophe;
  - c. The dates for the beginning and end of the suspension period (only a seven calendar day period); and
  - d. Name, title, phone number, and signature of the governmental body's contact person.
- 2) Post notice of the PIA suspension in the same places the city would post notice of an open meeting. This would be at the bulletin board or electronic bulletin board at the city hall and on the city's website, if the city has a website.<sup>94</sup>

29. For how long can the requirements of the Act be suspended?

The governmental body may suspend the applicability of the requirements of the Act for an initial suspension period that does not exceed seven consecutive days.<sup>95</sup> The initial suspension period must occur during the period that:

- (a) begins not earlier than the second day before the date the governmental body submits the notice to the office of the attorney general; and
- (b) ends not later than the seventh day after the governmental body submits the notice.<sup>96</sup>

A governmental body may extend an initial suspension period, one time, if the governing body determines that the governing body is still impacted by the catastrophe on which the initial suspension period was based.<sup>97</sup> The initial suspension period may be extended for not more than seven consecutive days that begin on the day following the day the initial suspension period ends.<sup>98</sup>

30. What happens to requests for public information that are received before or during a suspension period(s)?

The requirements of the Act related to a request for public information that was received before the initial suspension period begins are tolled until the first business day after the date the suspension period ends.<sup>99</sup> A request that is received during a suspension period is considered to have been received by the city on the first business day after the date the suspension period ends.<sup>100</sup>

31. Is there a different notice form that the city has to fill out if the city decides to extend the temporary suspension of the Act?

The attorney general's office has promulgated an extension catastrophe notice form (second page) for the extension of the temporary suspension of the Act. The following information is required for the extension form:

1. Name of the governmental body;
2. The dates of the initial suspension;
3. Identification of the catastrophe;
4. Dates of the extension suspension period (only seven calendar days); and
5. Name, title, phone number, and signature of the governmental body's contact person.<sup>101</sup>

As with the initial catastrophe notice, the extension has to be submitted to the attorney general's office and posted where open meetings notice are required to be posted.<sup>102</sup>

34. If the city offices are closed, working with a skeleton crew, or working remotely, does the city have to fill out a catastrophe notice form and submit it to the attorney general's office?

C. Rights and Duties of the Governmental Body and of the Public Information Requestor

35. Is a governmental body required to post information regarding the Public Information Act?

A governmental body's public information officer is responsible for posting a sign which informs the public about its right to access public information.<sup>104</sup> The sign must be displayed in the governmental body's administrative offices. The attorney general's office is responsible for determining what specific information must be displayed on the sign. For more information, a governmental body may contact the Open Government Hotline at (512) 478-6736 or (877) 673-6839 or its website.

36. What inquiries can a governmental body make of a public information requestor?

Generally, there are only two permissible lines of inquiry that can be made of a requestor. First, the governmental body can ask a requestor for proper identification.<sup>105</sup> This inquiry for proper identification should be done if needed, but if the information can be given without any identification, then the inquiry is not necessary. State law does not indicate how such identification could be accomplished if the request is completely handled through the mail, e-mail, or by fax.

This identification requirement is generally imposed by a governmental body when a state statute limits who may gain access to certain information. For example, certain statutes regulate who can gain access to information within motor vehicle records, such as copies of drivers' licenses.<sup>106</sup> These statutes contain specific rules on what inquiries can be made to determine if the requestor is eligible to receive the information. If an open records request involves such information, the governmental body should visit with its legal counsel regarding the applicable law.

Second, as discussed earlier in this article, a governmental body may ask the requestor for a clarification if the request is unclear or ask the requestor to narrow the scope of the request if the request is unduly broad.<sup>107</sup> It should be noted that the governmental body cannot ask the requestor the purpose for which the information will be used.<sup>108</sup>

37. Does the name and address of a public information requestor become public information?

In certain cases, a public information requestor can be required to provide identification, which may include his or her name or address.<sup>109</sup> If the governmental body receives this information and it becomes part of a governmental record, there is no statutory provision that would except it from disclosure.

38. Can a requestor choose the format (paper, computer disc, etc.) in which the governmental body must provide requested information?

If the governmental body has the technological ability to produce the information in the requested format, it is usually required to do so.<sup>110</sup> For example, if a requestor wants a copy of information on a computer disk, he can ask that it be provided in that format. The governmental body cannot insist on providing the information in only a paper format if the governmental body has the ability to provide it in the requested format. However, the governmental body is not required to buy additional hardware or software to accommodate a PIA request. If the governmental body is unable to provide the requested information in the requested medium because it does not have the technological ability, it would require it to buy additional software or hardware or it would violate copyright agreements between the governmental body and a third party, then the governmental body can provide the information on another medium that is acceptable to the requestor.

39. Can a public information request require a governmental body to create a record if none exists?

A PIA request generally does not require the governmental body to produce information which is not in existence.<sup>111</sup> The Act does not require a governmental body to prepare new information in response to a request.

40. Does a governmental body have to comply with standing requests for copies of records?

A governmental body has no duty to comply with standing requests for copies of records.<sup>112</sup> If a requestor seeks documents that are not in existence at the time of the request, the governmental body may notify the requestor of this fact and ask the requestor to resubmit the request at a later time when such a record may be available. Also, the governmental body has no duty to notify the requestor in the future that the information has come into existence.<sup>113</sup> However, some governmental bodies have chosen to accommodate standing requests for certain records. Whether to enter into such agreements is at the governmental body's discretion. Nonetheless, if such an arrangement is made, it should be available to any requestor on an equal basis.<sup>114</sup>

41. Can a public information request require the governmental body to compile statistics, perform research, or provide answers to questions?

A PIA request only requires a governmental body to provide copies of documents that relate to the information sought by the requestor. The Act does not require a governmental body to calculate statistics, to perform legal research, or to prepare answers to questions.<sup>115</sup>

42. Does a public information request require a governmental body to locate information that is not organized or retrievable by the type of information that is requested?

Sometimes a PIA request will ask for certain documents or information that is not organized or retrievable by the type of information that is requested. If the governmental body could provide this information by making a simple computer search or by some other basic task, it should make such an effort.<sup>116</sup> The governmental body may notify the requestor of the format in which the information is currently available.<sup>117</sup> However, if providing the information would require extensive research, the governmental body has no duty to take such action.<sup>118</sup>

If providing the requested information would require programming or manipulation of data, the governmental body shall send the requestor a written notice explaining that the requested information is not in the format requested and to provide the information would require programming and manipulation of data at a cost to the requestor.<sup>119</sup> The notice must include a cost estimate for providing the information in the format that meets the requestor's preferences. Also, the notice must be sent to the requestor within 20 days after the date the governmental body received the PIA request. If the requestor does not respond to the written notice within 30 days, the request is considered withdrawn.

43. Must a governmental body buy new software or equipment to accommodate a request for information in a certain format?

A governmental body has no duty to purchase new software or hardware to accommodate a public information request.<sup>120</sup> If the governmental body is unable with existing resources to provide the information in the requested format, the record should be provided in a paper format or in another medium that is acceptable to the requestor.<sup>121</sup> In certain cases, a governmental body can provide the information in the requested format by manipulating the data within a computer system or by making a programming change that allows access to the information. If a PIA request would require such manipulation of data or programming, the governmental body can notify the requestor of the applicable cost of putting the information together in that format and require the requestor to agree to pay the cost of production of the material.<sup>122</sup>

44. Can requestors insist on the right to personally use the governmental body's equipment to access public information?

The attorney general has concluded that a member of the public does not have the right to personally use a government computer terminal to search for public information.<sup>123</sup> Instead, the governmental body may require that searches of public information be conducted by government personnel who then provide the requestor with access to or copies of the requested items. Of course, a governmental body may adopt a policy to allow the public to use his/her computer terminals to access information, but the public cannot demand that such a policy be implemented.

45. Do requestors have a right to bring in their own copier to make copies of public records?

A requestor is allowed to bring his or her own copier to make copies of public records. However, a governmental body may refuse to allow the use of a requestor's portable copier if such activity would: (1) be unreasonably disruptive, (2) cause a safety hazard, (3) interfere with others' right to inspect and copy records, or (4) if the requested records contain confidential information that needs to be redacted.<sup>124</sup>

46. Can requestors require the governmental body to copy information onto supplies provided by the requestor?

The Act specifically provides that a governmental body is not required to copy information onto material provided by a public information requestor. For example, a governmental body does not have to copy information onto paper or onto a computer disk that is provided by the requestor. Instead, the governmental body may choose to use its own materials.<sup>125</sup>

47. Does the governmental body have to release information that is also available commercially?

Generally, a governmental body is not required to allow access to or to make a copy of information from a commercial book or publication that is in the governmental body's possession. If the publication was purchased by the governmental body and it is still available commercially, the governmental body can alert requestors of this fact. However, a governmental body is under a duty to allow inspection of the commercial book or publication if portions of the publication are specifically made a part of, incorporated into, or referred to in a governmental body rule or policy.<sup>126</sup>

48. Does a governmental body have to release information that is copyrighted?

If a request is made for documents that are copyrighted, the governmental body will have to provide access to those records, unless there is an applicable exception that would allow those records to be withheld. However, the governmental body is not required to make copies of copyrighted material for a requestor.<sup>127</sup> Instead, the governmental body should provide the requestor access to the information. The requestor bears the duty of compliance with federal copyright law.

49. Must a governmental body respond to repeated requests for the same information?

If a governmental body has previously provided copies of certain information, the governmental body has no duty to provide the same information to the requestor again.<sup>128</sup> Similarly, if a governmental body has previously made the information available and the requestor has not paid the costs associated with the prior request, the governmental body may respond to a second request for such documents by providing a special notice to the requestor.<sup>129</sup> The governmental body's public information officer or his or her agent must provide the requestor a letter which certifies that all or part of requested information was previously furnished to the requestor or was made available upon payment of costs.<sup>130</sup> The certification must include:

1. a description of the information that was previously furnished or made available;
2. the date the governmental body received the previous request;
3. the date the governmental body previously furnished or made available the information to the requestor;
4. a statement that no further additions, deletions, or corrections have been made to that information; and

Of course, a governmental body may choose to provide the requested information.<sup>133</sup> It is important to note that a governmental body must furnish or make available upon payment of applicable charges any information that has not been previously supplied or made available to the requestor.<sup>134</sup>

D. Temporary Custodian

50. What is the definition of a “temporary custodian”?

A temporary custodian is a current or former officer or employee of a governmental body who, in the transaction of official business, creates or receives public information that the officer or employee has not provided to the public information officer of the governmental body or the public information officer's agent.<sup>135</sup>

51. Does a temporary custodian have a personal or property right to public information that was created or received while acting in their official capacity?

A temporary custodian does not have a personal or property right to public information that was created or received while acting in their official capacity.<sup>136</sup>

52. Is a temporary custodian required to retain public information on his/her privately owned device?

A temporary custodian who has public information on a privately owned device is required to either:

- (1) forward or transfer the public information to the governmental body or a governmental body server to be preserved for the required record retention schedule; or
- (2) preserve the public information in its original form on the privately owned device and in a backup or archive for the required record retention schedule.<sup>137</sup>

53. What is a temporary custodian required to do if the city’s public information officer receives a request for public information that includes public information in his/her possession, custody, or control?

A temporary custodian is required to surrender or return public information that is in his/her possession, custody, or control not later than the 10th day after the date the public information officer requests that the temporary custodian surrender or return the public information.<sup>138</sup> If the temporary custodian fails to surrender or return the public information requested by the public information officer, the governmental body will have grounds to discipline an employee that is a temporary custodian.<sup>139</sup> Also, the temporary custodian will be subject to any penalties provided by the PIA or other laws. For example, a temporary custodian can be subject to a writ of mandamus under section 552.321 of the Government Code or criminally charged with failure to provide access to public information under section 552.353 of the Government Code.

54. When is a request for public information considered received by the governmental body if a request to surrender or return public information is requested from a temporary custodian?

The governmental body is considered to have received the request for public information on the date the information is surrendered or returned to the governmental body by the temporary custodian.<sup>140</sup>

55. What is the duty of the public information officer concerning retrieving public information from a temporary custodian?

The public information officer is required to make a reasonable effort to obtain public information from a temporary custodian if:

1. The information has been requested from the governmental body;
2. The public information officer is aware of facts sufficient to warrant a reasonable belief that the temporary custodian has possession, custody, or control of the requested information;

E. Contracting Entities Required to Provide Contracting Information

56. Are certain entities required to provide contracting information to a governmental body when a governmental body receives a PIA request concerning information in the custody or possession of the entity and not maintained by the governmental body?

There are certain entities that are required to provide contracting information to a governmental body when the governmental body receives a PIA request concerning information in the custody or possession of the entity and not maintained by the governmental body.<sup>142</sup> These entities are not governmental bodies and have executed a contract with a governmental body that:

1. Has a stated expenditure of at least $1 million in public funds for the purchase of goods or services by the governmental body; or
2. Results in the expenditure of at least $1 million in public funds for the purchase of goods or services by the governmental body in a fiscal year of the governmental body.<sup>143</sup>

When a governmental body receives a written PIA request for this contracting information, the governmental body shall send a written request to the contracting entity to provide the requested contracting information not later than the third business day after the date the governmental body receives the written PIA request.<sup>144</sup> The contracting entity is required to promptly provide to the governmental body any contracting information related to the contract that is in its custody or possession.<sup>145</sup>

57. What is a contracting entity required to do with contracting information that is in its custody or possession that is the subject of a PIA request (PIA contracting entity requirements)?

The contract between the governmental body and the contracting entity requires the contracting entity to:

1. Preserve all contracting information related to the contract as provided by the record retention requirements applicable to the governmental body for the duration of the contract;
2. Promptly provide to the governmental body any contracting information related to the contract that is in the custody or possession of the entity on request of the governmental body; and
3. On completion of the contract, either:
  - a. Provide, at no cost to the governmental body, all contracting information related to the contract that is in the custody or possession of the entity; or
  - b. Preserve the contracting information related to the contract as provided by the record retention requirements applicable to the governmental body.<sup>146</sup>

Also, the contract must include the following statement:

The requirements of Subchapter J, Chapter 552, Government Code, may apply to this (include “bid” or “contract” as applicable) and the contractor or vendor agrees that the contract can be terminated if the contractor or vendor knowingly or intentionally fails to comply with a requirement of that subchapter.<sup>147</sup>

58. Are the deadlines to request an open records letter ruling changed when a governmental body receives a PIA request that includes contracting information that must be obtained from a contracting entity subject to the PIA contracting entity requirements?

Yes. A governmental body must request an open records letter ruling from the attorney general’s office concerning contracting information that is in the custody or possession of a contracting entity within 13 business days of the date the governmental body receives a written PIA request for the contracting information, as well as provide a copy of the request for the open records letter ruling to the requestor.<sup>148</sup> A governmental body must submit its brief and a copy of the information requested (or representative samples of such information) to the attorney general's office within 18 business days of the date the governmental body receives a written PIA request for the contracting information in the custody or possession of the contracting entity, as well as provide a copy of the brief to the requestor.<sup>149</sup> Note that these deadlines do not apply to contracting information that is maintained by the governmental body.<sup>150</sup>

59. If the governmental body does not receive the requested contracting information from the contracting entity in time to request an open records letter ruling, does the information become public?

If the governmental body does not receive the requested contracting information from the contracting entity in time to request an open records letter ruling, the requested contracting information does not become public if the governmental body:

1. complies with the requirements to send a written request to the contracting entity in a good faith effort to obtain the contracting information from the contracting entity;
2. is unable to meet the deadline to request an open records letter ruling because the contracting entity failed to provide the contracting information to the governmental body before the 13th business day after the date the governmental body receives the written PIA request for the contracting information; and
3. complies with the requirements of requesting an open records letter ruling from the attorney general not later than the eighth business day after the date the governmental body receives the information from the contracting entity.<sup>151</sup>

60. May a governmental body accept bids or contract with a contracting entity that does not comply with the PIA contracting entity requirements?

A governmental body may not accept a bid for a contract or award a contract to a contracting entity that the governmental body has determined has knowingly or intentionally failed, in a previous bid or contract, to comply with preserving contracting information and providing it to the governmental body upon request, unless the governmental body determines and documents that the contracting entity has taken adequate steps to ensure future compliance with these requirements.<sup>152</sup>

61. What is a governmental body required to do if a contracting entity is not in compliance with the PIA contracting entity requirements?

If a contracting entity fails to comply with the PIA contracting entity requirements, the governmental body shall provide written notice to the contracting entity that provides the PIA contracting entity the requirement that was violated, and advises the contracting entity that the contract may be terminated without further obligation to the contracting entity if the entity does not cure the violation on or before the 10th business day after the date the governmental body provides the notice.<sup>153</sup>

62. May a governmental body terminate a contract with a contracting entity?

Yes. A governmental body may terminate a contract with a contracting entity if:

- the governmental body provides the noncompliance notice to the contracting entity;
- the contracting entity does not cure the violation on or before the 10th business day after it has received the noncompliance notice;
- the governmental body determines the contracting entity has intentionally or knowingly failed to comply with the PIA contracting entity requirements; and
- the governmental body determines that the contracting entity has not taken adequate steps to ensure future compliance with the requirements.<sup>154</sup>

63. What is considered to be “adequate steps to ensure future compliance” for the purpose of not terminating a contract with a contracting entity?

A contracting entity is considered to be taking adequate steps to ensure future compliance with the PIA contracting entity requirements if the contracting entity (1) produces contracting information requested by the governmental body not later than the 10th business day after the date the governmental body makes the request; and (2)

establishes a records management program to enable the entity to comply with the PIA contracting entity requirements.<sup>155</sup>

64. Are there certain contracts that a governmental body may not terminate for noncompliance of the PIA contracting entity requirements?

Yes. A governmental body may not terminate the following contracts for noncompliance of the PIA contracting entity requirements:

- contracts that relate to the purchase of a public security;
- contracts that are or may be used as collateral on a loan; or
- contracts whose proceeds are used to pay debt service of a public security or loan.<sup>156</sup>

65. May a governmental body include and enforce more stringent PIA contracting entity requirements in its contracts with contracting entities?

A governmental body may include and enforce more stringent PIA contracting entity requirements in its contracts with contracting entities in order to increase accountability or transparency.<sup>157</sup>

66. Do the PIA contracting entity requirements create a cause of action?

The PIA contracting entity requirements do not create a cause of action to contest a bid for or the award of a contract with a governmental body.<sup>158</sup>

67. May a requestor file a suit for a writ of mandamus to force a governmental body or contracting entity to comply with the PIA contracting entity requirements?

IV. Statutory Exceptions That Allow Information to Be Withheld

A. Information that Is Presumed Public

68. Is there a list of items that are presumed to be public information?

The Act lists items that are presumed to be public information. Section 552.022(a) of the Government Code states “(w)ithout limiting the amount or kind of information that is public information under this chapter, the following categories of information are public information and not excepted from required disclosure unless made confidential under this chapter or other law.” For example, completed reports,<sup>160</sup> public court record information,<sup>161</sup> and settlement agreements to which a governmental body is a party<sup>162</sup> are just a few of the items that are considered public information.

69. What “contracting information” is presumed to be public information?

“Contracting information” means the following information maintained by a governmental body or sent between a governmental body and a vendor, contractor, potential vendor, or potential contractor:

- Information in a voucher or contract relating to the receipt or expenditure of public funds by a governmental body;
- Solicitation or bid documents relating to a contract with a governmental body;
- Communications sent between a governmental body and a vendor, contractor, potential vendor or potential contractor during the solicitation, evaluation, or negotiation of a contract;
- Documents, including bid tabulations, showing the criteria by which a governmental body evaluates each vendor, contractor, potential vendor, or potential contractor responding to a solicitation and, if applicable, an explanation of why the vendor or contractor was selected; and
- Communications and other information sent between a governmental body and a vendor or contractor related to the performance of a final contract with the governmental body or work performed on behalf of the governmental body.<sup>163</sup>

70. Is a discretionary exception considered “other law” for the purpose of withholding public information?

Discretionary exceptions are designed to protect the interests of the governmental body and are not considered “other law” for purposes of section 552.022 of the Government Code. Public information can only be withheld if it is “made confidential under [the Public Information Act] or other law.”<sup>164</sup> However, sections 552.104 (Information Related to Competition or Bidding) and 552.133 (Public Power Utility Competitive Matters) are two exceptions to this general rule.<sup>165</sup>

71. Is there “other law” which may be relied upon to withhold information under section 552.022 of the Government Code?

The Texas Supreme Court has concluded the term “other law” as it is used in section 552.022 of the Government Code does include the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure and Texas Rules of Evidence.<sup>166</sup> Accordingly, the attorney-client privilege and work-product doctrine could be considered “other law” for the purpose of withholding public information.<sup>167</sup>

B. General Issues Regarding Confidential Records

72. Is there a laundry list of items that are confidential under the Act and other state laws?

At this time, there does not appear to be an entity that publishes a single, comprehensive list of all the types of information that are confidential under state law. A governmental body should consult closely with its attorney and/or public information coordinator regarding records that state or federal law specifically require or allow to be withheld from the public.

73. Can staff promise confidentiality for certain records that are provided to the governmental body?

A promise of confidentiality from staff or a related promise within a governmental contract generally does not give the governmental body the right to withhold certain information from public disclosure. Such promises are only enforceable if a state statute specifically allows the governmental body to guarantee the confidentiality of the information.<sup>168</sup>

74. Can a governmental body substitute a new document or produce a redacted copy of a record in response to a public information request?

The governmental body is required to make copies of the actual records that exist. If authorized by law, the city can cross through or otherwise redact the confidential information. However, a governmental body may not substitute a new document in which only the non-confidential information is presented, unless the requestor consents to the substitution.<sup>169</sup>

C. Information about Public Officials/Employees

75. Can a governmental body disclose a public official or public employee's home address, home phone number, emergency contact information, social security number, or family information?

Public officials and public employees may request in writing that the governmental body not reveal his/her home address, home phone number, emergency contact information, social security number, or information about family members. In fact, governmental bodies are required to ask each employee whether they want such information to be treated as confidential. This inquiry to each employee must be made within fourteen days of the employee being hired, appointed, elected or ending service with the governmental body.<sup>170</sup> If the employee indicates in writing a preference for such confidentiality, the governmental body must refuse to release the personal information.<sup>171</sup>

Although the governmental body is required to make this inquiry to employees at the time of his/her starting or leaving employment with the governmental body, the ultimate duty to make a written request for confidentiality rests with the employee. If the governmental body receives a request for this information and no confidentiality request has been filed by the employee, it is too late for the governmental body to ask the employee whether such confidentiality is preferred. In such a case, the governmental body would have to release the personal information to the requestor.<sup>172</sup>

It is important to note that a peace officer is not required to file a written request to keep his/her personal information confidential. A peace officer's home address, home phone number, emergency contact information, social security number, and any information about family members are automatically confidential.<sup>173</sup> Additionally, the home address, home phone number, emergency contact information, social security number, and any information about family members relating to a peace officer killed in the line of duty will remain confidential after his death. The section also covers certain other state employees whose duties involve law enforcement.<sup>174</sup>

76. Can a governmental body withhold a public official or public employee's home address, home phone number, emergency contact information, social security number, or family information without requesting an attorney general ruling?

A governmental body can withhold a public official or public employee's home address, home phone number, emergency contact information, social security number, or family information without requesting an attorney general's ruling.<sup>175</sup> If a governmental body does withhold the public employee's information, the governmental body must provide the requestor, on a form prescribed by the attorney general, with:

- 1) a description of the information redacted or withheld,
- 2) the citation to section 552.024 of the Government Code, and
- 3) instructions regarding how the requestor may seek an Attorney General's ruling regarding whether the withheld information is excepted from disclosure.<sup>176</sup>

The requestor has the ability to ask for an attorney general's ruling regarding whether the withheld information is excepted from disclosure.<sup>177</sup> The attorney general's office has established procedures and deadlines for receiving information necessary to decide the ruling and briefs from the requestor, the governmental body, and any other interested party.<sup>178</sup> Like any other request for an attorney general's ruling, the attorney general has 45 business days to render a ruling.

77. Are personal notes kept by an official subject to the Act?

Personal notes pertaining to official business that are made by an official are generally subject to the Act. A governmental body should consider the following factors if it receives a request for such information: (1) who prepared the notes; (2) who possesses or controls the document; (3) who has access to it; (4) the nature of its contents; (4)

D. Personnel Information

78. What information within a public employee's personnel file is considered public information?

The vast majority of information within a public employee's personnel file is considered public information and accessible to the public. For example, information about a public employee's job performance, dismissal, demotion, promotion, resignation, and salary information is generally considered open.<sup>180</sup> Similarly, job-related test scores of public employees or applicants for public employment are generally treated as public information,<sup>181</sup> as are letters of recommendation, and opinions and recommendations concerning other routine personnel matters.<sup>182</sup> However, attorney general rulings have required information about an employee's withholding on a federal tax form to be withheld, as well as information about an employee's beneficiary under governmental body life insurance programs.<sup>183</sup> A governmental body may refuse to reveal certain information under common law privacy through Section 552.101 of the Government Code. To make such a determination, the governmental body should consider:

- 1) whether the information contains highly intimate or embarrassing facts about the person; and
- 2) whether there is any legitimate public interest in the release of or access to this information.<sup>184</sup>

Under the above two part-test, a court has held that a governmental body did not have to release the names and statements of victims and witnesses alleging sexual harassment.<sup>185</sup> The court found that the information at issue was intimate or embarrassing and that the public had no legitimate interest in the release of that information.

79. Can a governmental body disclose the dates of birth of public employees?

The dates of birth of public employees are excepted from disclosure under section 552.102(a).<sup>186</sup> Only those public employee's birth dates that are contained in records maintained by the governmental body in a personnel context are protected. Also, it applies to former, as well as, current public employees.<sup>187</sup> However, it does not apply to applicants for employment,<sup>188</sup> nor to private employees or private individuals.

80. Do employees have a special right of access to information contained in their own personnel file?

Most information within an employee's personnel file can be accessed by the involved employee or the employee's designated representative.<sup>189</sup> However, it is possible for the governmental body to withhold the employee's personnel information from the employee under some other exception. For example, the governmental body may be able to refuse to release information to an employee from his personnel file if the information relates to issues that are currently under civil or criminal litigation.<sup>190</sup>

81. Are the records within a city that has adopted civil service for its police and fire departments treated differently under the Act?

Section 143.089 of the Local Government Code prohibits a city's civil service fire or police department from releasing information from the department's personnel file. Instead, the department is required to refer someone who requests information from a civil service personnel file to the city's director of civil service.<sup>191</sup> Under Texas law, the civil service director maintains a separate set of personnel files. The files of the civil service director do not contain information about complaints against civil service police officers or firefighters if no departmental disciplinary action was taken or if the disciplinary action was determined to have been taken without just cause.<sup>192</sup> However, if there is disciplinary action taken against a police officer or firefighter, then all investigatory records relating to the investigation and disciplinary action, including background documents such as complaints, witness statements, and documents of like nature from individuals who were not in a supervisory capacity are required to be placed in the civil service personnel file.<sup>193</sup>

82. Are there certain work schedules or time sheets considered confidential under the Act?

The work schedules or time sheets of a firefighter, volunteer firefighter, or certain emergency medical services personnel<sup>194</sup> are confidential and excepted from the requirements of Section 552.021.<sup>195</sup>

E. General Exception to Withhold Information

83. Can a governmental body withhold social security numbers without requesting an attorney general's ruling?

A governmental body can withhold the social security number of a living person from any information without requesting an attorney general's ruling.<sup>196</sup> Governmental bodies must release the requestor's social security number to the requestor or an authorized representative of the requestor.<sup>197</sup>

84. Can a governmental body withhold the dates of birth of members of the public?

A governmental body can withhold the dates of birth of members of the public.<sup>198</sup> Dates of birth of members of the public are protected by common-law privacy pursuant to section 552.101 of the Government Code.

85. Are e-mail addresses protected from disclosure under the Act?

A governmental body cannot release the e-mail address of a member of the public that is provided for the purpose of communicating electronically with the governmental body.<sup>199</sup> The member of the public can allow his/her e-mail address to be disclosed if the member of the public affirmatively consents to its release. Under certain circumstances, some e-mail addresses are not excepted by section 552.137 of the Government Code. These circumstances are when the governmental body is provided with the e-mail address:

- 1) by a person who has a contractual relationship with the governmental body;
- 2) by a vendor who seeks a contract with the governmental body;
- 3) during the bidding process;
- 4) on a letterhead, coversheet, printed document or other document made available to the public; or
- 5) for the purpose of providing public comment on or receiving notices related to an application for a license as defined by section 2001.003(2) of the Government Code or receiving orders or decisions from a governmental body.<sup>200</sup>

86. What information is protected from disclosure under the exception for intra-agency and inter-agency memoranda or letters?

The Act allows a governmental body, in limited circumstances, to withhold certain information that is contained in an inter-agency or intra-agency memoranda or letter.<sup>201</sup> This exception has been held to only apply to internal staff communications consisting of advice, recommendations, or opinions that reflect the policymaking process.<sup>202</sup> This exception does not apply to purely factual information that could be severed from the opinion portions of the document. Additionally, this exception does not protect routine memoranda or letters on administrative and personnel matters, unless those matters involve policy issues of a broad scope.<sup>203</sup> For example, the evaluation of an individual employee would probably not be protected from disclosure under this exception.<sup>204</sup> On the other hand, a university report addressing systematic discrimination against minorities has been found to be protected by this exception.<sup>205</sup> It should be noted that ### 87. Can a governmental body release copies of certified agendas or recording of closed meetings (executive sessions)?

A certified agenda is a written document that summarizes each of the issues that were discussed at a closed meeting or the minutes of the closed meeting. The Open Meeting Act requires a governmental body have a certified agenda or recording of its closed meetings.<sup>207</sup> The certified agenda or recording of the closed meeting are considered confidential<sup>208</sup> and may not be released except under order of a court.<sup>209</sup> Therefore, a certified agenda or recording of a closed meeting can not be obtained through a PIA request. Actually, the release of a certified agenda or recording of a closed meeting is a class B misdemeanor.<sup>210</sup>

Governmental bodies can withhold the certified agenda or recording of a closed meeting without asking for an attorney general's ruling.<sup>211</sup> However, the certified agenda or recording of a closed meeting can be reviewed by members of the governmental body who attended the closed meeting.<sup>212</sup> Also, elected members that were absent from the closed meeting can review the certified agenda or recording.<sup>213</sup> But, a member of governmental body cannot have a copy or make a copy of the certified agenda or recording whether they were present for or absent from the closed meeting.<sup>214</sup> Additionally, a governmental body may not allow a member to review the certified agenda or recording of a closed meeting once the member has left the office.<sup>215</sup> The governmental body would want to adopt procedures for reviewing the certified agenda or recording, but it cannot absolutely prohibit the review by a member of the governmental body.

F. Law Enforcement Information

88. What information within the records of a law enforcement entity may be withheld?

Section 552.108 of the Government Code contains what is generally referred to as the “law enforcement exception”. This exception allows the governmental body to withhold four types of information:

- 1) Information That, If Released, Would Affect Investigation or Prosecution: Information that is held by a law enforcement agency or prosecutor that, if disclosed, would interfere with the law enforcement agency or prosecutor’s ability to detect, investigate or prosecute a crime;
- 2) Information About Certain Prosecutions: Information that deals with the prosecution of crimes that did not result in a conviction or a deferred adjudication;
- 3) Threats Against Peace Officers: Information that deals with threats against peace officers collected or disseminated under section 411.048 of the Government Code; or
- 4) Attorney Work-Product: Information that the attorney of the governmental body prepared for use in criminal litigation or information reflecting the mental impressions or legal reasoning of the attorney regarding such litigation.<sup>216</sup>

It is important to note that the law enforcement exception does not except from disclosure basic information about an arrested person or basic information within a criminal citation or police offense report.<sup>217</sup> Information that has been held to be open includes:

- 1) The name, age, address, race, sex, occupation, alias, Social Security number, police department identification number, and physical condition of an arrested person
- 2) The date and time of the arrest
- 3) The place of the arrest
- 4) The offense charged and the court in which it is filed
- 5) The details of the arrest
- 6) Booking information

<sup>217</sup> Id. § 552.108(c). See also Tex. Att’y Gen. ORD-127 (1976).

- 7) The notation of any release or transfer
- 8) The location of the crime
- 9) The identification and description of the complainant
- 10) The premises involved
- 11) The time of occurrence of the crime
- 12) The property involved, if any
- 13) The vehicle involved, if any
- 14) A description of the weather
- 15) A detailed description of the offense, and
- 16) The names of the arresting and investigating officers.<sup>218</sup>

Section 552.108 only applies to criminal investigations and prosecutions. Where no criminal investigation or prosecution results from an investigation of a police officer for alleged misconduct, section 552.108 is inapplicable.<sup>219</sup>

It is also important to note that the law enforcement exception may apply to departments other than the police department if those departments are, by law, charged with the detection, investigation, or prosecution of crime. For example, the attorney general has determined that the arson investigation unit of a fire department may cite the law enforcement exception to protect some of its records.<sup>220</sup>

89. Can motor vehicle accident report information be disclosed under the Act?

The disclosure of motor vehicle accident reports, also known as ST-3, CRB-3 or CR-3 forms, is governed by the Transportation Code.<sup>221</sup> In general, motor vehicle accident reports are privileged and for the confidential use of the Department of Public Safety (DPS), an agency the United States, state of Texas, or a local government of Texas that has use for the information for accident prevention purposes.<sup>222</sup> However, certain people and entities can obtain an un-redacted copy of a motor vehicle accident report.

- l) any person who may sue because of death resulting from the accident.<sup>223</sup>

Any person, with a written request and payment of the required fee, can receive a redacted version of the motor vehicle accident report.<sup>224</sup> The following information must be withheld in the redacted version of the accident report:

- 1) personal information as defined by section 730.003 of the Transportation Code<sup>225</sup>;
- 2) the first, middle, and last name of any person listed in an accident report, including a vehicle driver, occupant, owner, or lessee, a bicyclist, a pedestrian, or a property owner;

90. Can a governmental body release a body worn camera recording?

Body worn cameras are subject to chapter 1701 of the Occupation Code. Chapter 1701 provides the procedures a requestor must follow when seeking a body worn camera recording. A member of the public is required to provide the following information when submitting a written request to a law enforcement agency for information recorded by a body worn camera:

- 1) The date and approximate time of the recording;
- 2) The specific location where the recording occurred; and
- 3) The name of one or more persons known to be a subject of the recording.<sup>227</sup>

Failure to provide this information does not preclude a requestor from requesting the same information again.<sup>228</sup> However, even if the requestor provides the proper information to obtain the body worn camera recording, chapter 1701 provides for the confidentiality of the recordings under certain circumstances.

The body worn camera recording is confidential if it was not required to be made under a law or policy adopted by the appropriate law enforcement agency and does not relate to a law enforcement purpose.<sup>229</sup> Also, any recording that documents the use of deadly force or related to an administrative or criminal investigation of an officer is considered confidential and remains confidential until all criminal matters are finally adjudicated and all administrative investigations are complete.<sup>230</sup> However, a law enforcement agency may choose to release such information if doing so furthers a law enforcement purpose.<sup>231</sup> Before releasing a body worn camera recording that was made in a private place or in connection with a fine-only misdemeanor, the law enforcement agency must

Also, section 1701.662 extends the ten and fifteen business day deadlines associated with requesting a ruling from the attorney general to twenty and twenty-five business days, respectively.<sup>234</sup> Additionally, a governmental body that receives a "voluminous request" for body worn camera recording is considered to have complied with the request if it provides the information not later than twenty-one business days after it receives the request.<sup>235</sup>

G. Lawsuit or Other Legal Information

91. What type of information is excepted from disclosure under the attorney/client privilege?

Section 552.107(1) of the Government Code protects information coming within the attorney client privilege. When asserting the attorney client privilege, a governmental body has the burden of providing the necessary facts to demonstrate the elements of the privilege in order to withhold the information at issue.<sup>236</sup> The elements are as follows:

- 1) A governmental body must demonstrate that the information constitutes or documents a communication.<sup>237</sup>
- 2) The communication must have been made "for the purpose of facilitating the rendition of professional legal services" to the client governmental body.<sup>238</sup> The privilege does not apply when an attorney or representative is involved in some capacity other than that of providing or facilitating professional legal services to the client governmental body.<sup>239</sup> Governmental attorneys often act in capacities other than that of professional legal counsel, such as administrators, investigators or managers. Thus, the mere fact that a communication involves an attorney for the government does not demonstrate this element.

- 3) The privilege applies only to communications between or among clients, client representatives, lawyers and lawyer representatives.<sup>240</sup> Thus, a governmental body must inform this office of the identities and capacities of the individuals to whom each communication at issue has been made.
- 4) The attorney client privilege applies only to a confidential communication,<sup>241</sup> meaning it was "not intended to be disclosed to third persons other than those to whom disclosure is made in furtherance of the rendition of professional legal services to the client or those reasonably necessary for the transmission of the communication."<sup>242</sup>

Whether a communication meets this definition depends on the intent of the parties involved at the time the information was communicated.<sup>243</sup> Moreover, because the client may elect to waive the privilege at any time, a governmental body must explain that the confidentiality of a communication has been maintained. Section 552.107(1) generally excepts an entire communication that is demonstrated to be protected by the attorney client privilege unless otherwise waived by the governmental body.<sup>244</sup> Also, if a governmental body fails to timely seek an open records letter ruling to withhold information subject to the attorney-client privilege, the privilege is not waived and constitutes a compelling reason to withhold information under section 552.302 of the Government Code.<sup>245</sup>

92. When can a governmental body refuse to release information that relates to pending or anticipated litigation?

Under Section 552.103 of the Government Code, a governmental body can withhold information about pending or reasonably anticipated civil or criminal litigation. The litigation must be pending or reasonably anticipated as of the date the PIA request is received by the governmental body.<sup>246</sup> The governmental body, its officials, or its staff must be a party to such litigation.<sup>247</sup>

Whether litigation is reasonably anticipated is a question that involves both factual and legal issues.<sup>248</sup> There must be concrete evidence that litigation is likely. It must be more than mere conjecture. The governmental body must identify the issues that are involved in the litigation and explain how the information to be withheld relates to those issues. The governmental body should provide a copy of the relevant pleadings if the case has been filed.

Information that falls under the litigation exception generally can be withheld until the litigation has concluded or is no longer anticipated.<sup>249</sup> Criminal litigation is considered concluded once the statute of limitations has expired or when the defendant has exhausted all appellate and post-conviction remedies in state and federal court.<sup>250</sup> State law does not specifically define when civil litigation is considered to be concluded. Generally, civil litigation is considered to be concluded when all right of appeal has been exhausted and/or a final judgment has been entered. However, generally if the parties to civil litigation have inspected the records under discovery or through other means, the litigation exception would no longer apply.

93. When can a governmental body withhold attorney work product?

Section 552.111 encompasses the attorney work product privilege found in rule 192.5 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure.<sup>251</sup> Rule 192.5 defines work product as:

- 1) material prepared or mental impressions developed in anticipation of litigation or for trial by or for a party or a party's representatives, including the party's attorneys, consultants, sureties, indemnitors, insurers, employees, or agents; or
- 2) a communication made in anticipation of litigation or for trial between a party and the party's representatives or among a party's representatives, including the party's attorneys, consultants, sureties, indemnitors, insurers, employees or agents.<sup>252</sup>

For a governmental body to use this exception, the governmental body bears the burden of demonstrating that the information was created or developed for trial or in anticipation of litigation by or for a party or a party's representative.<sup>253</sup> To show that the information was made or developed in anticipation of litigation, the governmental body has to prove that:

- a) a reasonable person would have concluded from the totality of the circumstances surrounding the investigation that there was a substantial chance that litigation would ensue; and

b) the party resisting discovery believed in good faith that there was a substantial chance that litigation would ensue and [created or obtained the information] for the purpose of preparing for such litigation.<sup>254</sup>

A “substantial chance” of litigation does not mean a statistical probability, but rather “that litigation is more than merely an abstract possibility or unwarranted fear.”<sup>255</sup>

Also, the governmental body has to prove that the materials or mental impressions must have been prepared or developed by or for a party or party’s representatives, as well as, the communication was between a party and the party’s representatives.<sup>256</sup> Therefore, the governmental body must identify the parties and potential parties to the litigation, the person that prepared the information, and any individual with whom the information was shared in order to claim the work product privilege.<sup>257</sup>

H. Government-Operated Utility Information

94. What information about government-operated utility customers can be disclosed?

Certain personal information about government-operated utility customers is confidential if the customer makes a written request that the information not be disclosed.<sup>258</sup> A government-operated utility would include governmental entities that for compensation provide water, wastewater, sewer, gas, garbage, electricity, or drainage service.<sup>259</sup> Personal information is defined to include a customer’s address, telephone number, and social security number.<sup>260</sup> The government utility is responsible for giving customers a notice of their right to request confidentiality of this personal information that must include a statement of the amount of any fee applicable to the request and a form by which the customer may request confidentiality by marking an appropriate box on the form and returning it to the government-operated utility.<sup>261</sup> The notice must be included with a bill that is sent to each customer. This confidentiality does not affect the ability of the utility to release such information to other governmental agencies for official purposes, to consumer reporting agencies, or to another entity providing utility service.<sup>262</sup>

Although the utility has a duty to notify customers of their right to confidentiality of such information, the ultimate duty to request confidentiality remains with the customer. If the utility customer does not make such a written request, much of the personal information within the utility records is considered open to the public. If a member of the public requests access to this personal information, it would be too late for the utility to seek a written confidentiality request from that customer. If the customer subsequently files a written request that this information be kept confidential, the customer's request for confidentiality would apply only to later-received public information requests. Also, the utility will be able to withhold the customer's personal information without asking for an open records ruling if the customer has submitted a written confidentiality request.<sup>263</sup>

95. What information about a public power utility<sup>264</sup> may be confidential?

Section 552.133 of the Government Code excepts from disclosure a public power utility's information related to a competitive matter. The exception defines "competitive matters" as a utility-related matter that is related to the public power utility's competitive activity.<sup>265</sup> In order to be "utility-related", the matter must relate to the following six enumerated categories of information:

- 1) generation unit specific and portfolio fixed and variable costs, including forecasts of those costs, capital improvement plans for generation units, and generation unit operating characteristics and outage scheduling;
- 2) bidding and pricing information for purchased power, generation and fuel, and Electric Reliability Council of Texas bids, prices, offers, and related services and strategies;
- 3) effective fuel and purchased power agreements and fuel transportation arrangements and contracts;
- 4) risk management information, contracts, and strategies, including fuel hedging and storage;
- 5) plans, studies, proposals, and analyses for system improvements, additions, or sales, other than transmission and distribution system improvements inside the service area for which the public power utility is the sole certificated retail provider; and
- 6) customer billing, contract, and usage information, electric power pricing information, system load characteristics, and electric power marketing analyses and strategies.<sup>266</sup>

Also, there is a list of fifteen categories of information that may not be deemed competitive matters and therefore cannot be withheld under this exception.<sup>267</sup>

I. Purchasing/Procurement Information

96. What information must be disclosed if there is a public information request regarding a competitive bid?

Section 552.104 of the Government Code allows governmental bodies to withhold information that is submitted for competitive bids if its disclosure would give advantage to a competitor or bidder.<sup>269</sup> This exception can only be asserted by a governmental body. This exception applies when a governmental body demonstrates that release of the information would harm its interests by providing an advantage to a competitor or bidder in a particular ongoing competitive situation or in a particular competitive situation where the governmental body establishes the situation at issue is set to reoccur or there is a specific and demonstrable intent to enter into the competitive situation again in the future. Even if the information falls within one of the categories of information listed in section 552.022(a) of the Government Code, this exception allows a governmental body to withhold that information under this exception.<sup>270</sup>

However, any expenditure for a parade, concert, or other types of entertainment events paid for in whole or in part with public funds is prohibited from being withheld under this exception.<sup>271</sup> A governmental body or other entity cannot include a provision in a contract that would prohibit disclosure of these expenditures. Any contract provision that does prevent disclosure of these expenditures is void.<sup>272</sup>

97. What information is protected under the exception for trade secrets or the exception for commercial or financial information that would give an advantage to competitors?

Section 552.110 of the Government Code provides that certain information within bids and other documents may be protected under the exception for trade secrets or the exception for commercial or financial information that would give an advantage to competitors. First, information may be withheld if it is demonstrated based on specific factual evidence that the information is a trade secret.<sup>273</sup> “Trade secret” is now defined

- the owner of the trade secret has taken reasonable measures under the circumstances to keep the information secret; and
- the information derives independent economic value, actual or potential, from not being generally known to, and not being readily ascertainable through proper means by another person who can obtain economic value from the disclosure or use of the information.<sup>274</sup>

Second, commercial or financial information may be withheld if it is demonstrated, based on specific factual evidence, that disclosure would cause substantial competitive harm to the person from whom that information was obtained.<sup>275</sup>

Note that certain contracting information may not be withheld under this section.<sup>276</sup> Also, the Act requires governmental bodies to inform third parties when their proprietary information may be subject to this exception.<sup>277</sup> The governmental body must make a good faith attempt to notify the third party of the request for an open records letter ruling by sending a notice statement on a form promulgated by the attorney general's office and a copy of the PIA request to the third party within a reasonable time not later than the 10th day after the date the governmental body received the PIA request.<sup>278</sup> Also, the governmental body may decline to release the requested information for the purpose of requesting an open records letter ruling from the attorney general's office.<sup>279</sup>

98. What information is protected under the exception for proprietary information submitted to a governmental body?

Information submitted to a governmental body by a vendor, contractor, potential vendor, or potential contractor in response to a request for bids, proposals, or qualifications is excepted from disclosure under the Act if the vendor, contractor, potential vendor, potential contractor that the information related to demonstrates based on specific factual evidence that disclosure of the information would:

  - f. discounts, pricing methodology, pricing per kilowatt hour, cost data, or other pricing information that will be used in future solicitation or bid documents; and
2. give advantage to a competitor.<sup>280</sup>

However, this exception does not apply to: (1) information in a voucher or contract relating to the receipt or expenditure of public funds by a governmental body; or (2) communications and other information sent between a governmental body and a vendor or contractor related to the performance of a final contract with the governmental body or work performed in behalf of the governmental body.<sup>281</sup> Also, this exception does not apply to certain contracting information.<sup>282</sup>

This exception can only be asserted by a vendor, contractor, potential vendor, or potential contractor.<sup>283</sup> The PIA requires governmental bodies to inform third parties when their proprietary information may be subject to this exception.<sup>284</sup> The governmental body must make a good faith attempt to notify the third party of the request for an open records letter ruling by sending a notice statement on a form promulgated by the attorney general's office and a copy of the PIA request to the third party within a reasonable time not later than the 10th day after the date the governmental body received the PIA request. The governmental body must decline to release information to the extent necessary to allow a vendor, contractor, potential vendor, or potential contractor to assert the exception to disclosure.<sup>285</sup>

Which types of contracting information do the exceptions of confidentiality of trade secrets and certain commercial or financial information (section 552.110 of the Government Code) and exception of confidentiality of proprietary information (section 552.1101 of the Government Code) not apply to?

Sections 552.110 and 552.1101 do not apply to the following types of contracting information:

1. State agency's contracts for goods and services from a private vendor excluding any information that is confidential under law; excepted by an attorney general's open record decision; and an individual's social security number;
2. Major contracts of a state agency posted on the Legislative Budget Board's website excluding information that is not subject to disclosure under the Act;
3. The following contract or offer terms or their functional equivalent:
  - a. Any term describing the overall or total price the governmental body will or could potentially pay, including overall or total value, maximum liability, and final price;
  - b. A description of the items or services to be delivered with the total price for each if a total price is identified for the item or service in the contract;
  - c. The delivery and service deadlines;
  - d. The remedies for breach of contract;
  - e. The identity of all the parties to the contract;
  - f. The identity of all subcontractors in a contract;
  - g. The affiliate overall or total pricing for a vendor, contractor, potential vendor, or potential contractor;
  - h. The execution dates;
  - i. Effective dates; and
  - j. The contract duration terms, including any extension options; or
4. Information indicating whether a vendor, contractor, potential vendor, or potential contractor performed its duties under a contract, including information regarding:
  - a. A breach of contract;

- b. A contract variance or exception;
- c. A remedial action;
- d. An amendment to a contract;
- e. Any assessed or paid liquidated damages;
- f. A key measures report;
- g. A progress report; and
- h. A final payment checklist.<sup>286</sup>

100. What information may be withheld regarding the acquisition of real estate or personal property by a governmental body?

Section 552.105 of the Government Code provides governmental bodies with limited authority to withhold information that relates to the governmental body's acquisition of real estate or personal property.<sup>287</sup> Specifically, this exception is designed to protect a governmental body's planning and negotiating position with respect to particular transactions.<sup>288</sup> The authority to withhold this information generally ends once the governmental body acquires the involved property.<sup>289</sup> However, this exception is not limited solely to transactions not yet finalized. The attorney general's office has concluded that information about specific parcels of land obtained in advance of other parcels to be acquired for the same project could be withheld where release of the information would harm the governmental body's negotiating position with respect to the remaining parcels.<sup>290</sup> As long as the governmental body makes a good faith determination that the release of information would damage its negotiating position with respect to the acquisition of property, the attorney general will generally accept the determination, unless the records or other information show the contrary as a matter of law.<sup>291</sup>

Also, this exception has equal application to information pertaining to a lease of real or personal property.<sup>292</sup> Similarly, the information about the lease is considered an open record once the governmental body enters into the lease agreement. It should be noted that if the information falls under section 552.022, the governmental body cannot withhold it under this exception.

J. Economic Development Information

101. What information is protected under the exception for economic development negotiations?

Section 552.131 of the Government Code allows governmental bodies to withhold certain information related to economic development negotiations between a governmental entity and a business that the governmental body is seeking to have locate, stay or expand within or near the territory of the governmental body. Under this provision, the governmental body could withhold trade secrets of the business prospect that were related to economic development negotiations.<sup>293</sup> Similarly, governmental bodies may withhold certain commercial and financial information about the business prospect that was acquired during economic development negotiations if release of the information would result in substantial competitive harm to the business prospect.<sup>294</sup> The test for which this information may be withheld under this section is the same as the test for trade secrets under section 552.110 of the Government Code.

Additionally, until an agreement is made with the business prospect, the governmental body may withhold information about a financial or other incentive being offered to the business prospect by the governmental body or another person.<sup>295</sup> Any information about a financial or other incentive that is withheld under this provision would have to be released after an agreement is executed with the business prospect.<sup>296</sup>

102. May an economic development entity assert the exception of confidentiality of certain economic development information under section 552.131 of the Government Code?

An economic development entity whose mission or purpose is to develop and promote the economic growth of a state agency or political subdivision with which the entity contracts may assert Section 552.131 with respect to information that is in the entity's custody or control.<sup>297</sup> Like a governmental body, the economic development entity must make a good faith attempt to notify the third party of the request for an open records letter ruling by sending a notice statement on a form promulgated by the attorney general's office and a copy of the PIA request to the third party within a reasonable time not later than the 10th day after the date the economic development entity received the PIA request.<sup>298</sup>

K. Health Information

103. What is “protected health information”?

Protected health information is any information that reflects that an individual received health care from a covered entity as defined by Section 181.001(b)(2) of the Health & Safety Code.<sup>299</sup> Examples of covered entities include hospitals and medical centers.

A more specific definition of “protected health information” is individually identifiable health information that is transmitted or maintained in electronic media or any other form or medium.<sup>300</sup>

104. Is protected health information considered public information under the PIA?

Protected health information is not considered public information and is not subject to disclosure under the PIA.<sup>301</sup>

105. Is information provided by an out-of-state health care provider considered confidential and excepted from disclosure under the PIA?

Information obtained by a governmental body that was provided by an out-of-state health care provider in connection with a quality management, peer review, or best practice program that the out-of-state health care provider pays for is considered confidential and excepted under the PIA.<sup>302</sup>

V. Ability to Recover Costs for Providing Copies of Public Information

above the charges set by the attorney general's office.<sup>304</sup> The attorney general's office has set a charge of 10 cents per page for making simple photocopies or printouts. If a governmental body's actual cost for producing copies of public information exceeds the attorney general's office charges by more than 25 percent, the governmental body may apply to the attorney general's office for permission to charge more.<sup>305</sup> In no case may the charge by the governmental body exceed the actual cost of producing the requested copies.<sup>306</sup>

107. When can a governmental body recover labor charges for a public information request?

Labor to Produce Paper Copies: A governmental body may recover labor charges to handle a public information request for paper copies in three circumstances:

- 1) if the responsive records will result in over 50 pages of paper copies;
- 2) if the records to be copied are located in more than two separate buildings or in a remote storage facility;<sup>307</sup> or
- 3) if the governmental body provides access to paper documents that meet certain specifications.<sup>308</sup>

Presently, the attorney general's office allows a maximum labor charge of $15 per hour.<sup>309</sup> If the governmental body assesses a charge for labor, the requestor may require the governmental body to provide a statement of the amount of time that was needed to prepare the requested copies. This statement must be signed by the officer for public information or the agent of that officer with the signer's name clearly typed below the signature. The governmental body is not permitted to charge for providing this statement.<sup>310</sup>

Labor to Produce Copies from Electronic Records: Charges for copies of records that are stored electronically may include reasonable costs of materials, labor, and overhead if it results in more than 50 pages.<sup>311</sup>

If the governmental body assesses a charge for labor, the requestor may require the governmental body to provide a statement of the amount of time that was needed to prepare the requested copies. This statement must be signed by the officer for public information or the agent of that officer with the signer's name clearly typed below the signature. The governmental body is not permitted to charge for providing this statement.<sup>312</sup>

A governmental body can recover labor charges for providing access to electronic records if providing such access requires programming or manipulation of data.<sup>313</sup> In such a case, the governmental body must provide a special written notice to the requestor as provided under the Act.<sup>314</sup> Additionally, the governmental body must obey the rules of the attorney general's office in determining how much to charge for the labor.<sup>315</sup>

108. Can a governmental body charge for the labor cost to retrieve materials from remote locations?

A governmental body may charge for the labor cost of retrieving records that are located in two or more separate buildings that are not connected to each other or that are located in a remote storage facility.<sup>316</sup> Buildings are considered to be "separate" if they are not connected by a covered or open sidewalk, or by an elevated or underground walkway.<sup>317</sup> The charge for labor can be recovered in such a situation even if the requestor seeks fewer than 50 pages of copies.<sup>318</sup>

109. When and how much may a governmental body charge for overhead when handling a public information request?

A governmental body may impose a charge for overhead whenever a personnel (labor) charge is applicable to a PIA request. Any overhead charge cannot exceed 20 percent of the personnel charge.<sup>319</sup>

110. Can a governmental body recover costs for any modifications to its computer program that are necessary to respond to a public information request?

A governmental body may charge a requestor for the cost of any programming or manipulation of data that is necessary to answer a PIA request.<sup>320</sup> Presently, the attorney general's office allows a maximum programming charge of $28.50 per hour.<sup>321</sup> Unlike most other charges for public information, this charge may be imposed even if the requestor only wants access to the requested information and does not request any copies.<sup>322</sup> However, before a governmental body may impose such a charge, it must provide the requestor with certain written information in advance, including a statement of the estimated charges.<sup>323</sup>

111. Can a governmental body require a requestor to pay the costs for producing the records prior to the governmental body mailing out the requested information?

If a requestor asks the governmental body to mail the information, the governmental body can send the information by first class mail and can require that the requestor pay in advance for postage, along with other permitted charges related to producing the information.<sup>324</sup> A governmental body is not required to provide public information by mail until the requestor pays all applicable charges.

112. Can a governmental body refer a requestor to the governmental body's website if the public information being requested is available on the governmental body's website?

A governmental body complies with the Act when it refers a requestor to the governmental body's website if the information being requested is available on the governmental body's website.<sup>325</sup> The governmental body will have to refer the requestor to the exact Internet location or uniform resource locator (URL) address on its website. The information has to be accessible to the public and the requested information must be identifiable and readily accessible. However, if the requestor prefers to receive the requested information in a manner other than access through the URL, the governmental body must supply the information in the manner requested. Also, if the governmental body provides by e-mail an Internet location or URL address for requested information, the e-mail must contain a statement in a conspicuous font clearly indicating that the requestor may nonetheless access the requested information by inspection or duplication or by receipt through U.S. mail.<sup>326</sup>

113. What duty does a governmental body have to inform a requestor of the estimated charges for copies of or access to public information?

A governmental body is required to provide detailed information to the requestor if the charges for a public information request are likely to exceed $40.<sup>327</sup> The governmental body must provide the requestor with a written statement that contains:

- 1) an itemized estimate of the expected cost;<sup>328</sup>
- 2) inform the requestor about contacting the governmental body about an alternative method for supplying the requested records if an alternative method exists and it would be less costly;<sup>329</sup>
- 3) inform the requestor that he or she has ten business days to provide the governmental body with a written response stating whether:
  - a. the charges are accepted,
  - b. the request is modified, or
  - c. a complaint has been lodged with the Attorney General's office alleging overcharges for providing the copies;<sup>330</sup> and
- 4) notify the requestor that failure to respond to the statement within ten business days results in the automatic withdrawal of the public information request.<sup>331</sup>

If the governmental body finds that the costs will exceed more than 20 percent of the original estimate, the governmental body must provide the requestor with an updated itemized statement.<sup>332</sup> The requestor again has ten business days to provide the governmental body with a written response to the updated statement, or the request will be considered to be withdrawn.

If the actual charges are more than $40, a governmental body may only charge the amount estimated in the latest itemized statement that was provided to the requestor.<sup>333</sup> However, if the governmental body did not provide the requestor with an updated itemized statement, the governmental body is limited to charging no more than 20 percent more than the amount of the original itemized statement.<sup>334</sup>

114. Can a governmental body require a monetary deposit or bond in order to comply with a public information request?

A governmental body can require a deposit or bond to comply with a public information request if the governmental body provides the requestor with an appropriate estimated itemized statement.<sup>335</sup> If such a statement is provided, a governmental body that has 16 or more full-time employees may require a deposit or bond if the estimated charge for producing copies of the requested records exceeds $100.<sup>336</sup> A governmental body with fewer than 16 full-time employees may require a deposit if the estimated charges for producing copies of information are more than $50.<sup>337</sup> If the requestor modifies the request, then the modified request is considered a separate request.<sup>338</sup> This separate modified request is considered received on the date the governmental body receives the written modified request. If the requestor does not make a deposit by the 10th business day after the date the deposit is required, then the public information request is considered withdrawn.<sup>339</sup>

115. Can a governmental body reduce or waive the cost for making copies of public information?

A governmental body shall reduce or waive the normal charge for copies of public information if providing the copies would benefit the public.<sup>340</sup> The governmental body may waive a charge for such copies if the cost of collecting the fee would exceed the amount of the charge.<sup>341</sup>

116. Can a governmental body count multiple public information requests from the same requestor as a single request for the purpose of calculating cost?

Section 552.261 of the Government Code allows a governmental body that receives multiple requests from the same requestor in one calendar day to treat those requests as a single request for the purposes of calculating cost.<sup>342</sup> However, if a governmental body receives the same request from different individuals on behalf of an organization, it will not be able to combine those requests for the purpose of calculating cost.

VI. Vexatious Requestors

117. What is a vexatious requestor?

A vexatious requestor is a person who abuses the Act by sending frequent and/or voluminous public information requests to a governmental body, especially small governmental bodies, to disrupt the operations of the governmental body's business.

118. How can a governmental body deal with vexatious requestors who ask for voluminous amounts of information?

Section 552.275 allows a governmental body to establish a reasonable monthly or annual time limit on the amount of personnel time spent to produce a PIA request for inspection or to prepare copies for a requestor.<sup>343</sup> For cities, this would be done by ordinance. Here are the specifics:

- 1) If the governmental body establishes an annual time limit, the limit may not be less than 36 hours for a requestor during a 12-month period starting at the beginning of the governmental body's fiscal year.<sup>344</sup>
- 2) If the governmental body establishes a monthly time limit, the limit may not be less than 15 hours per requestor per month.<sup>345</sup>
- 3) Every time a requestor submits a public information request, the governmental body must keep track of the amount of time spent to compile the information for the request. (This means for every requestor, not just the alleged vexatious requestor.)
- 4) When responsive information is sent, the governmental body is required to send a letter to the requestor informing him of the amount of personnel time spent on the request and how much personnel time has cumulatively been spent on his requests.<sup>346</sup>
- 5) Once the requestor has surpassed the established time limit, the governmental body can impose certain costs on the requestor and provide a written cost estimate for any public information request received thereafter.<sup>347</sup>
- 6) The written cost estimate must be sent to the requestor on or before the 10th day after the date on which the public information was requested.

- 7) If the governmental body needs more time to prepare the written cost estimate, the governmental body must provide a letter to the requestor explaining it needs additional time to provide the written cost estimate.<sup>348</sup>
- 8) After sending the additional time letter, the governmental body must send the written cost estimate as soon as possible, but either on or before the 10th day after the governmental body provided the additional time letter.
- 9) A requestor must pay the amount in the governmental body's written cost estimate before the governmental body will process the request if the governmental body has sent a written cost estimate and the requestor has exceeded the monthly or annual time limit.<sup>349</sup>
- 10) If the requestor fails or refuses to pay the amount in the cost estimate, the request is considered withdrawn.<sup>350</sup>

Also, if the requestor has made previous PIA requests in which the governmental body: (1) has located and compiled documents in response to those requests; (2) sent written cost estimates that remain unpaid; and (3) the requests have not been withdrawn on the date the requestor submits a new request, the governmental body is not required to locate, compile, produce or provide copies of documents or prepare a written cost estimate until the date the requestor pays each unpaid cost estimate in connection with any previous requests or the previous requests are withdrawn.<sup>351</sup>

119. Are any requestors exempted from Section 552.275?

Yes. The law does not apply if a requestor is an individual who, for a substantial portion of the individual's livelihood or for substantial financial gain, gathers, compiles, prepares, collects, photographs, records, writes, edits, reports, investigates, processes, or publishes news or information for and is seeking the information for:

- 1) dissemination by a news medium<sup>352</sup> or communication service provider<sup>353</sup>, including:
  - a. an individual who supervises or assists in gathering, preparing, and disseminating the news or information; or

- b. an individual who is or was a journalist, scholar, or researcher employed by an institution of higher education at the time the person made the request for information; or

2) creation or maintenance of an abstract plant (i.e., title records).<sup>354</sup>

Also, elected officials of the United States, Texas, or a political subdivision of Texas, and representatives of a publicly-funded legal service organization that is a 501(c)(3) exempt organization are exempted from section 552.275.<sup>355</sup>

VII. Enforcement of the Public Information Act

120. Is a requestor allowed to sue a governmental body for failure to comply with the Act?

A requestor is allowed to bring a declaratory judgment or injunctive relief against a governmental body for violations of the Act. The requestor may file a complaint against a governmental body with the local county or district attorney.<sup>356</sup> The complaint must meet the following requirements:

- 1) be in writing and signed by the complainant;
- 2) state the name of the governmental body that allegedly committed the violation, as accurately as can be done by the complainant;
- 3) state the time and place of the alleged commission of the violation, as definitely as can be done by the complainant; and
- 4) describe the violation, in general terms.<sup>357</sup>

Before the 31st day after receiving the complaint, the local prosecuting attorney must determine if a violation has been committed, decide whether to take action against the governmental body, and notify the person who filed the complaint of that decision.<sup>358</sup>

If the local prosecutor declines to proceed with an action against a governmental body, the complainant can file a complaint with the attorney general before the 31st day after the date the complaint is returned to the complainant by the local prosecuting attorney.<sup>359</sup> Also, if the local prosecutor does not bring any action on or after the 90th day after the date the complaint is filed, the complainant can file a complaint with the attorney general. The attorney general must determine if a violation has been committed, decide whether to take action against the governmental body, and notify the person who filed the complaint of that decision. The attorney general's office must notify the complainant of its determination before the 31st day after receiving the complaint.<sup>360</sup>

If either the local prosecuting attorney or the attorney general decides to bring a lawsuit against a governmental body, the governmental body must be notified prior to the filing of the lawsuit.<sup>361</sup> The governmental body has three days to remedy the problem.

121. What civil remedies can be brought against a governmental body for failure to comply with the Act?

If a governmental body refuses to release public information or refuses to request an attorney general ruling, either the requestor or the attorney general may bring a lawsuit to force the release of the records in question.<sup>362</sup> Even if the attorney general has determined that the governmental body may withhold the requested information, the requestor may still file a lawsuit against the governmental body to seek disclosure of the requested information.<sup>363</sup> Under certain circumstances, a third party may file litigation to prevent the release of records that implicate that person's privacy or proprietary interests.<sup>364</sup>

In a writ of mandamus<sup>365</sup>, declaratory judgment or injunctive relief<sup>366</sup> lawsuit, a plaintiff that substantially prevails in their suit is entitled to an award of attorney fees and costs<sup>367</sup> However, a court may not assess cost and attorney fees against a governmental body if the court finds that the governmental body acted in reasonable reliance on:

- 1) a judgment or an order of a court applicable to the governmental body;
- 2) the published opinion of an appellate court; or
- 3) a written decision or opinion of the attorney general.<sup>368</sup>

In a lawsuit by a governmental body seeking relief from compliance with an attorney general ruling, a court may not order the losing side to pay litigation costs and attorneys' fees, unless the court finds the action or defense of the action was groundless in fact or law.<sup>369</sup>

Additionally, a requestor who feels he or she has been overcharged for copies of public information may file a complaint with the attorney general's office.<sup>370</sup> The attorney general's office may require the governmental body to pay the requestor the amount of any overcharge. If the attorney general's office finds that the overcharge was due to bad faith on the part of the governmental body, the requestor who is overcharged may recover up to three times the amount of the overcharge from the governmental body.<sup>371</sup>

122. What are the criminal penalties for noncompliance within the Act?

There are three provisions of the Act that have criminal penalties if violated:

Failure to Give Access to Public Information.<sup>372</sup> A person responsible for releasing public information commits a crime if he or she fails to give access to or fails to permit copying of public information as required by the Act. This violation is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of up to $1,000, a six-month jail term, or both. Also, the Act states that this violation constitutes official misconduct. Thus, a public official may be subject to removal from office for such an offense. However, there are affirmative defenses to this violation.<sup>373</sup> The affirmative defenses are:

- 1) Reasonable belief that public access to information not required and relied on a court order, court opinion, or ruling by the attorney general's office;<sup>374</sup>
- 2) A ruling from the attorney general's office has been sought and no decision has been issued;<sup>375</sup>
- 3) A suit filed in Travis County district court challenging ruling by the attorney general's office and suit is pending;<sup>376</sup> or
- 4) Officer's agent reasonably relied upon written instruction from the officer of public information.<sup>377</sup>

Release of Confidential Information.<sup>378</sup> A person commits a crime if he or she distributes information considered confidential under the Act. This violation is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of up to $1,000, a six-month jail term, or both. This violation also constitutes official misconduct.

Illegal Destruction or Alteration of Public Information.<sup>379</sup> A person commits a crime if that person willfully destroys, mutilates, or alters public information or removes such information without permission. This offense is a misdemeanor and is punishable by a fine between $25 and $4,000, three days to three months of jail time, or both.

It is important to note that there are provisions of Texas law outside of the Act that criminalize tampering with a governmental record which may constitute a felony.<sup>380</sup>

VIII. Additional Information on the Public Information Act

123. How long must a governmental body retain various types of records?

All governmental bodies have a record retention schedule to preserve its records for a certain amount of time.<sup>381</sup> The Local Government Records Act (LGRA) is codified in Chapters 201 through 205 of the Local Government Code. The LGRA provides that, on or before June 1, 1990, the governing body of each local government should have designated a records management officer.<sup>382</sup> The LGRA further provides that, by January 1, 1991, the governing body should have established a records management program.<sup>383</sup> On or before January 4, 1999, all cities were required to prepare a records control schedule and file with the Director of the Texas State Library and Archives Commission (TSLAC) a written certification of compliance that the local government has adopted records control schedules that comply with the minimum requirements established on records retention schedule issued by TSLAC.<sup>384</sup> A governmental body may not destroy records prior to the time set for the destruction of those records in the governmental body's retention schedule.<sup>385</sup>

TSLAC has promulgated model records retention schedules. The schedules are available on the TSLAC's website. For more information concerning record retention, including the Local Government Record Act, and how to comply, contact the State and Local Records Management Division of the Texas State Library and Archives Commission either at its website: <https://www.tsl.texas.gov/slrinfo>, by phone at (512) 463-7610, or by email at slrinfo@tsl.texas.gov.

124. Are all elected or appointed governmental officials required to take training about the Act?

Elected and appointed officials must have a minimum of one hour but no more than two hours of training.<sup>386</sup> Newly elected or appointed officials have 90 days to complete the required training. If the governmental body has designated a public information coordinator, then the officials can opt out of taking the training provided that they designate their public information coordinator to receive the training in their place. The public information coordinator must be the person who is primarily responsible for the processing of open records requests for the governmental body. The official or public information coordinator should receive a certificate of completion. The governmental body shall maintain the certificates and make them available for public inspection.

125. Where can a governmental body get more information about the Public Information Act?

The Office of the Attorney General produces a Public Information Act Handbook, an in-depth publication about the Act and its interpretation through attorney general rulings and court cases. That publication can be found on the attorney general's website. Also, the Open Records Division of the Office of the Attorney General sponsors an Open Record Hotline where public officials and concern citizens can get answers to basic questions about the Public Information Act and an Open Records Cost Hotline where staff can answer questions about charges relating to the Public Information Act. The phone number for the Open Government Hotline is (512) 478-OPEN (6736) or (877) OPEN-TEX (673-6839) and for the Open Government Cost Hotline is (512) 475-2497 or (888) OR-COSTS (672-6787).
